Commissionerships In Doubt

Woman's Club Strikes Snag

TENSE silence reigned in the Carmel council chamber Wednesday evening, before and after Mayor James Thoburn spoke the fateful words, "I refuse to appoint the commissioner of fire and police at this time."

This pointblank statement followed another vain attempt on the part of the mayor to split the commissionerships. When his motion to amend Ordinance 2, which would create a commissioner of fire and water, another of police and safety, failed to carry, Mayor Thoburn asked "Is there any further business to come before the council?

"Your honor, you have a commissioner to appoint," said John Catlin.

It was then that the mayor made his unequivocal pronouncement.

Tense Drama

Seldom has such drama and such intensity of feeling attended the deliberations of the council as that which followed City Clerk Saidee Van Brower's reading of a petition, signed by 200 names, asking that Bernard Rowntree be appointed commissioner of fire and police. Catlin has held this post temporarily since the resignation of Robert Norton, former commissioner of fire and police, to become chief of police.

A pregnant silence reigned after the reading of the petition.

"I still think that it would be in the best interests of the city to make the change in the commissionerships I have already suggested," said the mayor. Catlin spoke up immediately in strong opposition. "This is part of the basic law of Carmel and should remain until there is some better reason than has yet been presented for a change," he concluded.

Mayor Makes Motion

"May I make a motion?" asked Mayor Thoburn. He was assured by City Attorney Argyll Campbell that he had that privilege.

"I move that Ordinance 2 be so amended as to place fire and water under one commissioner, police and safety under the other."

Again silence. Then Councilman Brownell seconded the mayor's motion. The motion lost, with Councilmen Burge, Catlin and Rowntree voting against it.

Earlier in the meeting the council, city attorney and a delegation from the Woman's Club carried on a lengthy three-sided discussion as to what legal procedure is best if the women are to secure reclassification of the site at Ninth and Dolores which the club wishes to purchase for a club building. Obstacle is the zoning law which prohibits the building of social clubs in the residence area.

Some Technicalities

Several solutions were suggested by the city attorney; zoning of the plot affected into the business district, amendment of the ordinance to permit social clubs to enter the residential district, or temporary zoning of the club site into the business district, followed by rezoning of the club, after it is built, into the resi-

Mayor Thoburn and Bernard Rowntree Answer Questions

Mayor James Thoburn, asked to make a "statement to the press" as to why he refused to appoint a commissioner of fire and police Wednesday evening, said:

"I am going to continue to try to persuade the council to amend Ordinance 2 and split the commissionerships. This is not a compromise move. I am convinced Catlin is best for police commissioner, Rowntree for fire commissioner."

Councilman Bernard Rowntree was asked if he knew of any reason why Mayor Thoburn does not regard him as a suitable police commissioner.

"I was told some time ago," he said, "that it is because I am a Quaker."

"Would your religious beliefs preclude the use of such 'force' as might be required of you as commissioner of police?" he was asked.

Councilman Rowntree answered, "Absolutely not."

School Election Friday, March 29

Election of one trustee for Sunset school will be held next Friday, March 29, with Adolph G. Hanke still the only candidate in the field. The term of Mrs. Daisy B. Taylor expires at this time; Mr. Hanke consented to run several weeks ago as a compromise between the faction promoting Mrs. Taylor as a candidate to succeed herself, and the one sponsoring Donald Hale.

Carmel Precincts 1 and 2 have been consolidated for the school election as Precinct A, and the polling place will be the Carmel fire house. Precinct B, made up of Carmel Precincts 3 and 4 and portions of Pebble Beach and Point Lobos Precincts will have as its polling place Sunset school.

While Mr. Hanke's candidacy is unopposed, his sponsors are urging a large and representative "vote of confidence," in appreciation of his consent to be a candidate.

OCEAN AVENUE UNDERGOES SLICKING UP FOR SUMMER

Ocean avenue is undergoing its annual slicking up in preparation for a busy summer, under the supervision of Joseph A. Burge, street commissioner. Stones which have been nudged from their places in the center parking strip, are being realigned, rocks and concrete are being set around beds and trees, which will check too rapid run-off during summer watering, and the parking places are being smoothed and leveled, preparatory to spreading an oil mixture to keep dust down.

Utility Election Set for June 4

Carmel, Monterey and Pacific Grove will vote at a special election June 4 to determine whether a utility district shall be formed on the Monterey Peninsula, for the immediate purpose of purchasing the Monterey County Water Works. This was determined by the county supervisors, who at their meeting in Salinas Tuesday called the election and set the date as a result of resolutions from the councils of the three cities requesting such action.

As the question has already caused considerable controversy, a hot pre-election contest is expected. Each city will vote as a unit; adverse vote of one community would automatically exclude it from the district formed by favorable vote of the other two.

At Del Monte Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Eric Tyrell-Martin gave a large buffet dinner.

Budapest String Quartet to Play at Sunset School Tomorrow Night

THE outstanding characteristic of the Budapest String Quartet, which is to play tomorrow night at the Sunset School auditorium, is that of perfect co-ordination and oneness. It has often been said that this is the quality which distinguishes great ensemble playing from mere group playing. Unless the music moves supremely and as a single tone across the four instruments it does not attain the unique beauty for which it strives.

With the Budapest String Quartet, however, this is the point most frequently mentioned by critics. After ten years of devoted and constant work, the players have achieved a perfect unison which is the delight of all audiences.

The quartet will play a Beethoven number on the program tomorrow night, Opus 59 No. 1 in F Major. This will give Carmel an opportunity of hearing some of their most famous playing. Nowhere do they reach such perfection as in their performance of Beethoven and Haydn.

As this will be the last concert of the season for the Carmel Music Society, an unusually large audience is expected. The following is the program:

Josef Roismann, first violinist; Alexander Schneider, second violinist; Stephan Ipolyi, violist; Mischa Schneider, 'cellist.

1. Op. 76, No. 3, D Major (Haydn); Allegretto, Largo, Minuetto, Finale.
2. Op. 59, A Minor (Beethoven); Allegro ma non troppo, Andante, Menuetto (Allegretto), Allegro molto.
3. Op. 59, No. 1, F Major (Beethoven); Allegro, Allegretto vivace, Adagio molto, Allegro.

LICENSE TRIAL SET MARCH 30

Questioning the constitutionality of Carmel's ordinance requiring a separate license for businesses operating here, but not maintaining an establishment in Carmel, the Oakland Towel Supply Company was defendant at a preliminary hearing in Judge Wood's court Tuesday afternoon. The charge was failure to pay the annual license of $40. The company has offered to pay $20, the same license fee that Carmel firms pay; but was cited to appear on a charge of failure to pay the license levied on outside firms.

Leroy R. Goodrich, Oakland attorney, repersented the towel company at the preliminary hearing; City Attorney Argyll Campbell appeared on behalf of Carmel. Date of the trial was set for March 30. In case of an adverse decision, it is considered probable that the case will be appealed.

At that time Ed Simpson of Pacific Grove was elected chairman and Mrs. T. G. Emmons of Salinas, secretary. Besides Miss Ledyard, other new committee members are Dr. Ed Leach of Salinas and Homer T. Hayward of Monterey.

Mr. Simpson, Mrs. Emmons, Mrs. Howard Hatton of Carmel Valley and Jack Beaumont of Pacific Grove, all of whom were members of the old Emergency Relief committee, remain on the board under the new set-up, to act in an advisory capacity with the state administration.

New Oxygen Tent at Hospital Saves Valley Man's Life

Just in time to save the life of William Hageman of Carmel Valley. Peninsula Community Hospital acquired a new oxygen tent a fortnight ago. The new equipment is invaluable in treatment of serious heart ailments, which was Mr. Hageman's trouble, and also in treatment of pneumonia.

dence district. Rather complex technicalities attend any of these moves, as explained by the city attorney. The club had complied with the suggestion, leading to reclassification of the property, that they secure signatures of more than 50 per cent of taxpayers within 400 feet of the area affected, but it was discovered during the meeting that the organization had not presented its own application in proper legal form, and had neglected to prepare a scale map which would designate the club-site and the location of the signatory property owners.

Suggest an Attorney

When it was pointed out that a lawyer would probably be required to present the application complete in all its legal details and that a public hearing would be required, the club president, Mrs. H. S. Nye, remarked that under these circumstances she felt the club would be obliged to abandon its building project.

"You are putting us to more expense that we can undertake," she concluded.

"It is not the council which is putting you to the expense, it is the law," the council spokesman responded. A murmur of resentment from the club women followed, but Mr. Campbell stepped quickly into the breach to suggest alternatives. After lengthy discussion, it resolved again into the necessity for the women to revamp their application and present it with the drawing which had earlier been mentioned.

Immunization Delayed

The council heard read, and laid over until next meeting, the resolution which would make immunization of all pets against rabies compulsory. As all but about 30 per cent of domestic animals have been immunized, the public response has been good at the clinics conducted here for that purpose, and as it was announced that there will be another clinic a week from tomorrow, it was decided to give this last chance for voluntary immunization before the compulsory measure is passed.

At the request of the city attorney, the council voted to request the sanitary board to pass a sanitary ordinance governing house connecions, street excavations, and other technical matters. Three communications relative to dead trees on private property which should be removed were read. It was agreed that the council can declare them a public nuisance, notify property owners and others interested and fix a time of hearing on whether the council should use its police powers to remove them. For a consideration of $1, the council will permit the Sunset school district to use city equipment to grade playgrounds at the school. It was announced that work on the beach erosion SERA project will begin a week from today. Another council meeting, the fifth this month, will be held next Wednesday.

NEW PAYTON HEIR

A son was born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Payton of Pacific Grove at Peninsula Community hospital. It is their first child. Weight on arrival: seven pounds, eight ounces.

Old Friends Hold Carmel Reunion

Reunion of old friends who were last together in the south of France was staged in Carmel at the end of last week, when Mme. Marie Berthe of Nice arrived here in the course of a round-the-world journey to be the guest of Dr. Mary Benton and Mrs. John L. Clark. Mme. Berthe has gained prominence in France and friends throughout the world as the result first of her extensive war work, and her later activities on behalf of the White Russian refugees who poured into France after the revolution. The extensive resources of her husband and herself, including several chateaux in the Riviera region were placed at the disposal of her proteges, and she assisted them in disposing of the personal treasures which they were able to bring out of the country.

Mme. Berthe has been so absorbed in her helpful work for so many years that she has had little time to devote to other, purely personal interests. After her husband died, about a year and a half ago, she found a note in his papers, saying, "After I go, I want you to travel." It was as a result of this that she decided to give herself the indulgence which she had wished for, but had hesitated to allow herself. She is devoting two years to a gradual circumnavigation of the globe, and from California will proceed to the Orient.

SCOTTISH RITE CLUB

Attending the meeting of the Monterey County Scottish Rite club at Hotel Franco Tuesday night were H. E. Farley, Robert Haller, Earl Van Zandt, C. A. Watson, Grant Wills and E. C. Kaiser of Carmel. An Italian dinner was served, and the speakers were Leslie Dewar of Salinas and O. V. McDaniels of Watsonville. Carmelites Watson and Haller were among the winners of door prizes.

TO CODIFY ORDINANCES

Work was expected to begin today on the SERA project of codifying, classifying and indexing ordinances and other official records of the city of Carmel. The project will give work to one person, probably for about six weeks.

Buchan's "Oliver Cromwell" Subject of Review by Mrs. Margaret Grant

ANOTHER of Mrs. Margaret Grant's splendidly organized studies of an historic character, which seem less founded upon the book she reviews than suggested by it, was given at Wednesday's meeting of the Woman's Club book section. The book under discussion was Buchan's "Oliver Cromwell," a new biography of Britain's great sixteenth century soldier-statesman, but from the wealth of knowledge gained through profound historical study, the speaker augmented and enriched the volume she presented.

Graphic Outline

Following the course of his meteoric career, Mrs. Grant gradually built up a graphic outline of Cromwell's character; a soldier, a mystic profoundly concerned with his own personal relationship to his maker; a great mind nurtured on a study of history with no interest in poetry or philosophy; a puritan who was still broad, tolerant, free from dogmatism; an opportunist, as all leaders are in periods of transition; amazing in his combination of political acumen and statesmanship with military genius, capable of carrying out a wise and forceful foreign policy as well as a great leader at home. Cromwell's was not a quick mind, and his thinking was not always clear, but when after arduous inner debate he made up his mind, he clung tenaciously to his opinions. He had a terrific temper well in hand, but he knew well how to unleash it when it would do the most good.

A Great Figure Passes

"The very portents of nature was against him," said Mrs. Grant, describing the unusual tempestuous weather amid which the great leader departed this life, "but when he died, there passed one of the greatest figures England ever produced."

The reviewer professed herself more moved to sympathy with the unhappy Charles I by the Buchan book than by any previous knowledge she had had of him. His execution by Cromwell was not a popular move, she said, and was received by the mass of the people with a horrified conviction that sacrilefie had been committed.

The peculiar value of Mrs. Grant's reviews arises from her own assumption that the past and present are an unbroken chain of events; that time is indeed "relative"; that the great figures of the past are alive and significant today as when they played their heroic roles on the world's stage.

Story Teller Gives Sprightly Tales of Ireland

OUT of a life-time devoted to collecting and appreciative retelling of the old tales of the Irish countryside, Seumas MacManus addressed an audience at Denny-Watrous Gallery Friday evening, explaining the rich and ancient backgrounds which have given birth to a pungent and characteristic folk-lore, and illustrating with some of the typical and traditional tales. This scholarly interpreter of Irish folk-ways showed a two-sided personality; the one rather matter-of-fact and schoolmasterly; the other twinkling and almost bursting with inner joy at the tales he loves so well. If he had shared a little more with his audience the delightful nonsense so unmistakably and inimitably Irish, and taken a bit for granted their acceptance of the tales and the background from which they spring, it would have been more fun for all concerned.

At Irish peasant firesides are still told today stories that are two or three thousand years old, and are shared with the peoples of Persia, India, Turkey, where they are older still. As an example of one of these world-wide favorites he told "The Well of the World's End"; a prose tale, but with a surging rhythm like poetry, a style in which the old stories were "well and beautifully clothed." When he told of how the fairies came to Ireland, and of the simple, sincere belief of the country-folk in the "gentle people," one wondered if the modern matter-of-fact conclusion that "of course" there are no fairies, would not bear reconsidering.

Mr. McManus sat rapt at the feet of the old tale-tellers as a tiny lad, and was himself a "professional," master of a hundred tales, at the ripe age of 7. He added to his repertoire in the little district school, exchanging stories with the boys who came from the "seven glens," and so became a clearing-house of rich and varied lore.

As a young man he appreciated the literary quality of his collection, and began "setting them down" for the outside world to read. He is a big man, with bristly eye-brows, a flowing mustache and a rampant crest of hair, all of the same roufous tinge. His genial humor is unsuccessfully disguised by the scholarly, black-ribboned pince-nez.

Mrs. Valentine Mott Porter, Carmel's own resident "shanachie," was appropriately chosen to introduce Mr. McManus, and her light-touched, understanding presentation gave the proper setting for that which followed.

Junior C. of C. Meets To Begin Second Year

The Junior Chamber of Commerce regular semi-monthly luncheon meeting Monday in Monterey broke all attendance records as the organization went into its second year.

A real enthusiasm is being shown by the younger business men of the peninsula and the Junior C. of C. shows promise of becoming a big factor in community growth.

The chamber has a number of projects under consideration with committees investigating the practicability of them and will report at the next meeting, according to K. Y. Sapero, president.

It was decided that a future policy will be to hold meetings in various restaurants in the three peninsula cities.

American Legion Program Inspires Audience; Lieut.-Governor Is Speaker

"AMERICANISM" was made the subject of an impressing ceremoney at Sunset school last Friday evening when the American Legion Post of Carmel put on a program designed to give the youth of this district as well as the adults a "brushing up" on the meanings of their rights and liberties under the Stars and Stripes.

Chief speaker on the program was Lieutenant-Governor George J. Hatfield, who was introduced by "friend and neighbor" Senator Edward H. Tickle of Highlands Inn. Outstanding event of the evening proved to be the address of Edgar Leslie, 13-year-old Sunset school student, whose "Contributions of American Youth to Democracy and Idealism" stirred the audience to long applause and made the listeners realize that the youth of America has not yet lost its respect for flag and country.

Organizations Represented

The program opened impressively with Brownies, Cubs, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts and Legionnaires reciting oaths of allegiance. This was followed by the audience singing the "Star Spangled Banner," standing at attention as the flag was brought to the stage by the American Legion flag bearers. Melvin C. Dorsett gave the invocation.

From the balcony in Sunset school auditorium Legionnaires gave the preamble to American Legion constitution, followed by "Onward, America" by the students of Sunset school massed in the orchestra seats.

James J. Regan, commander of Carmel Post No. 512, made his opening remarks brief to allow more time to the principal speakers. He called attention to the purpose of the meeting and then left the introductions to the remainder of the program to Major Chester A. Shephard, Americanization chairman for the legion. Major Shephard introduced those on the stage and then Daisy B. Taylor, retiring member of the Sunset school board presented a flag to the Sunset school student body for Mrs. Samuel Barling and Mrs. J. H. Scott, in memory of J. G. Jennings, sisters, who had had the colors in their family for 25 years. The flag was received for the school by Homer Levinson, president of the student body, who made a brief and excellent speech in acceptance.

Part Youth Has Played

Edgar Leslie in his speech, which followed Major Shephard's "words of welcome," cited the part American youth had played throughout the history of the country in its contributions to Democracy and Idealism. He told of specific cases from the earliest time down to the present and thrilled his audience with his fine delivery and logical reasoning. Following Edgar's talk the school sang "America the Beautiful."

Byington Ford then explained to the audience what is meant by "Subversive Activities." He said that the Legion had no quarrel with the political and economic theories of any party, but because Communism had for its tenets the overthrow of government by force, the people should act to stem the tide of subversive activities carried on by this party. He also spoke of the theories of Fascism and the dangers of that growing menace.

Lieutenant-Governor Hatfield said that in order to check the encroaching menace of Communism it is necessary to defend American rights and liberties by constant vigilance and accept a program of justice and liberalism in place of the doctrine spread by the leaders of the Soviet union. He declared that Communism was fostered throughout the world by the men now in power in Russia and should be crushed in this country before it could become rooted. He began his address with the landing of the Pilgrims in America and graphically told of their hardships and suffering in their fight for liberty, the same liberty for which the American Legion is today fighting.

The closing ceremony conducted by James Reagan, the commander of the local post, was impressive and in keeping with the occasion. Those who had seats upon the stage during the meeting were: Byington Ford, Major Shephard, James J. Regan, Mrs. Daisy B. Taylor, Mrs. Eugene Watson, P-T. A.; Dr. John Gray, Manzanita Club; Lieut.-Governor Hatfield, O. W. Bardarson, Edgar Leslie, Senator Tickle, Al Clarke, Soledad, commander Thirteenth District American Legion; Commander Rogers, Gilroy Post No. 213; Commander Flint, Canadian Legion; Commander Curry, Monterey Post No. 41; Past Commander Reynolds, Salinas Post No. 31; Past District Commander Irvine, Monterey Post No. 31.

The meeting was attended by legionnaires from various posts throughout Monterey county, as well as elsewhere in the state.

Woman's Club Bridge Party Monday Afternoon

Taking the place of the usual meeting of the Woman's Club bridge section next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock will be a bridge party at the Scout House for the joint benefit of the club and the Girl Scouts. The affair is not limited to club members, but is open to friends of both organiaztions. Mrs. Osborn Johnson, telephone 1166-W, is taking reservations. Tickets are 50 cents each, or $2 for a table, and for tea only the charge will be 25 cents. Proceeds will be divided evenly between the two sponsoring organizations.

The current events section will hold its regular meeting Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Scout House. Chief speaker will be Mrs. Margaret Grant, whose subject will be "Mexico." Mrs. Willis G. White, section chairman, will give a brief review of outstanding recent events.

The bird study group will meet on Tuesday, March 26. Those wishing to attend should get in touch with Laidlaw Williams, who appoints the meeting place each week.

RAINFALL FIGURES

Carmel rainfall climbs steadily toward the 20-inch mark, with an additional .63 registered this week, bringing the season total to 18.78 inches.

Cast Selected for Pirandello Drama Locally

Cast of characters has been completed at definite dates set for the production here of Pirandello's play, "Six Characters in Search of an Author." The play will be given at Denny-Watrous Gallery for three nights, April 11, 12 and 13. Beverly Wright is directing the piece and the following cast, with the parts they will play, has been announced:

The Director, William Shepherd; the Father, Eugene A. H. Watson; the Mother, Peg Carroll; the Step-Daughter, Phyllis La Vay; the Boy, Sonia Noskowiak; Mme. Pace, Linda Sargeant; Leading Man, Franklin Dixon; Leading Lady, Anna Marie Baer; Juvenile Lead, Phillip Walker; Second Actress, Frances Tooker; Secretary, Margo Roach; Prompter, William LaGrille; Stage Manager, Bud Nelson.

From the night of its production in Rome in 1921, when the audience reached a stage of pandemonium, the play has been the subject of much discussion; arguments, praise and abuse have centered about its author; some call it the greatest of drama; others say it is incomprehensible; to still others it is at once the most daring, brilliant play of contemporary times.

A MEMORIAL

Dedicated to the memory of Thos. Shrewsbury Parkhurst, who passed on March 26, 1923.

No spot on earth so dear to me at night
Where stars and silvery moonlight shine o'er
Carmel Highlands-by-the-Sea.
And stately pine trees outlined 'gainst the sky like sentinels
Keep watch until the morning dawns
For you and me.

No spot on earth so dear to me when nature's day breaks forth
O'er Carmel Highlands-by-the-Sea—
"Fullness of Peace, Power and Plenty" breathed from
Sun, and misty fog, and rain, till evening shadows fall again
For you and me.

And when to us the final summons comes
Methinks that mirro'd in the Great Beyond will be
God's "little bit of heaven on earth"—
Carmel Highlands-by-the-Sea,

ELIZABETH S. CHAMBERLIN.

MRS. EDWARD CRANE OF SANTA CRUZ PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Edward Crane of Santa Cruz, mother of Mrs. Charles Sayers, and friend of a number of Carmelites, passed away at her home last week after a lengthy illness. Mrs. Crane came of an English colonial family in the Argentine. At the outbreak of the European war, just as she was about to return to South America after a visit in England, she accepted a post in the censor's office in London. Her knowledge of languages made her particularly valuable, and she remained in this post for the duration of the war.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

ANNA LOUISE STRONG, stormy petrel o fthe labor movement in this country nearly a generation ago, one of the few Americans who has made her power and her personality felt in the councils of Soviet Russia, was in Carmel last Saturday. For the last 15 years she has been editor of the "Moscow Daily News," unique example of a woman and a foreigner in a position of responsibility close to government. Mrs. Strong comes back to the United States every few years, to keep her perspective clear. She says that there is such a cleavage developing between the basic thinking of Soviet Russia and this side of the world that soon they may have no common ground of understanding. She is now completing a book of mutual interpretation, tentatively titled "I Change Worlds," referring to her own shuttling back and forth between the two civilizations. The Russians think that she is probably alone in the completeness of her understanding of both.

When she came through Washington some days ago, Mrs. Strong had several hours' audience with President and Mrs. Roosevelt. She has been lecturing all across the country, without molestation. Compared to previous years, her audiences are growing more "respectable," she says, more conservative, and drawing fewer of the "middle-of-the-road liberals" who formerly, with the radicals, seemed most interested in what she had to say. Just before coming here she had addressed a capacity house in the Scottish Rite auditorium in San Francisco; she was en route to Southern California, where she had several lecture engagements. She was a guest at the Lincoln Steffens home where a number of Carmelites talked with her informally.

Mrs. Strong is a big, matronly-looking woman, with a round rosy face and remarkable eyes; large, luminuous, grey-green. Her hair, almost white, is brushed over from a low side part and hangs in a straight square bob. There is no superficial adornment of a commanding personality; her manner is calm, thoughtful and receptive.

MR. and Mrs. Walter Hampden have completed their visit with the Doughertys in the Highlands and left early this week for Pasadena, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Flavin. They are completing pre-production arrangements and preparing to begin rehearsals on "Achilles Had a Heel," which Mr. Flavin wrote, Mr. Hampden will act, assisted by a Pasadena cast, and Gilmor Brown will direct for the Playhouse. If it proves to be a good vehicle, intimations are that Hampden will take it to New York.

We don't know just what the play is about, and no one in the Highlands seems to, and as the Flavins are gone we can't ask them. It is probably on a classical theme, rather than a modern play with classic reference, as Hampden is generally regarded as interested only in Shakespearean or classical plays. The production date will be April 23, and it is probable that a substantial Carmel delegation will go down to see it.

The Hampdens were rather quiet during their stay here, the purpose of which was rest. His enthusiasm for Social Credit induced the actor to appear at once of the group meetings here. Whereas the actor is completely nonchalant behind greasepaint, fortified by costumes, props and well-learned lines, he has been seen to shake like a leaf in the few tense moments before going on to address a small drawing-room group about Social Credit. On some occasions his voice has been so quavery, just at first, that the audience had difficulty in hearing him. He gave no evidence of stage-fright here, probably because the occasion was impromptu and he had no time to dread it. His son, Paul Hampden—named for his uncle, Paul Dougherty—is a prominent member of the Social Credit group in New York City.

Over the telephone, you would not know whether you were talking to Hampden or Dougherty, their voices, inflection and way of speaking are so similar. Face-to-face the resemblance is less marked.

OLD Carmelite friends of John N. Hillyard were seeking to verify this week round-about word of his death which reached them in a metropolitan newspaper indicating that he died some days ago in Indianapolis. The Hillyards came here about 20 years ago and bought in the Eighty Acres the house which is now occupied by David Alberto. For a number of years he devoted himself to the writing of fiction. After leaving here he joined the magician, Howard Thurston, as his manager.

Thurston, Hillyard, Houdini and Conan Doyle are supposed to have had a mutual compact of communication, if possible, from beyond the gates of death. Thurston is now the sole survivor. The key-message Doyle, the first to pass, was to have transmitted to any one of the four, Thurston says the message, a single word, has never been recevied.

Carmel Pets Immunized Up to Seventy Per Cent

Seventy per cent of Carmel pets have been immunized, 53 receiving their protective shots at the 50-cent clinic conducted by the city and the county health department at the fire-house Saturday, according to Earle Duclus. Monterey has done slightly better, with 80 per cent of animals counted in the pet census immunized; Pacific Grove was about 70 per cent, and the unincorporated areas about 60 per cent.

If sufficient interest is shown in Carmel, another clinic will be held here later, said Duclus, who considers that the response has been excellent so far. The fact that the third positive case of rabies has been reported from a head sent north this week, may provide the necessary spur. This dog came from the vicinity of Mission and Eleventh, the same district that provided the other two positive cases, according to the health department.

Reeve Conover to Talk To League of Women

Reeve Conover will be the speaker at the meeting of the government and economic welfare group of the League of Women Voters next Monday afternoon. It had been planned to hold the meeting at the home of Miss Helen Davis in Pacific Grove, but owing to the unusual interest in the subject, community planning, the meeting place has been changed to Holman's solarium, promptly at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Conover's subject, on which he has done considerable research and is regarded as an authority, is "Wise Community Use of eFderal Funds." His point is, that with federal funds available for assistance in worthy local projects, there is need as never before for concerted, intelligent planning for future local needs.

Is Carmel Off Drama Standard? Fresnans Give "Another Language"

By THELMA B. MILLER

THE best play presented in Carmel this season, by a very acceptable cast from the Fresno players, did not have what you could call an enthusiastic reception Saturday and Sunday nights. Whether this may be interpreted as a boycott of Edward Kuster, or a snooty conviction that no other amateurs could possibly be as good as Carmel's amateurs, it could not be blamed on the quality of the play. Perhaps the amateur theater has definitely gone into a decline, as a fad no longer justifying its existence by commanding spontaneous popular support. This, however, does not seem to be the case elsewhere in California.

It seems strange that the man who has made Carmel known to the outside world as an important dramatic center is a prophet without honor in his own community. Kuster had a sure-fire vehicle in "Another Language," one of the best and most successful plays of recent years. It was well cast and well acted; if people were really interested in the theater it would seem that this play should have considerable appeal. If people were really interested in the idea of the community theater, it would seem that they would welcome a chance to see what neighboring communities are doing in that direction.

"Another Language" is mildly a problem play, dealing with the difficulties which a sensitive and rather artistic young woman has in adapting herself to her middle-class and materialistic in-laws. One reason for the success of the play is that every woman sees her husband's relatives in the Hallam family and herself as the misunderstood outsider. It handles delicately and beautifully the love of a boy for an older woman, who is at home in a world of beauty and ideas of which his stodgy relatives know nothing, and on which they place no value. Her fleeting half-response to him is a reaction against the mediocrity of the others and her husband's stupid handling of a crisis in their relationship.

It depends greatly on the actor who is cast as Vickie Hallam whether or not his ultimate reconciliation with Stella, the idealist, is convincing. The supposition is that Vickie must have been a little different from the rest of the Hallams when she married him and that as the play opens he is more or less at the cross-roads. It depends on Stella whether he shall fall into the pattern of his brothers or remain a reasonably well-balanced individual, with interests not entirely circumscribed by business, pinochle and family solidarity. The play ends with the assumption that Stella has triumphed.

Jack La Bonte, the Fresnan who played Vickie Hallam, seemed a trifle too mature and finished, to convince the audience that Stella was chooosing wisely in remaining with him rather than following the disillusioned young nephew out the door. He was excellent in the second act in which he betrayed his lack of sympathy for Stella's "romantic" notions; the typical middle-class husband who regards "culture" as all right for women, if it doesn't interfre with the housework, but having no possible connection with himself or his relations with her.

Adelaide Baines made a good "Stella"; pretty, smart, and earnest. She had exactly the right touch with young Jerry, wanting to encourage him in the revolt against the family pattern, realizing that his interest in her was personal as well as intellectual, and striving to keep their relation on a matter-of-fact and friendly plane. Young Jerry, played by John W. Hodgkin, was the picture of youthful sincerity; he made a convincing character of the thwarted, half-tragic lad who loves Stella more as the embodiment of an ideal than as a person.

Mother Hallam is a thoroughly unpleasant little person who keeps her family dancing attendance, covertly resents her daughters-in-law, and accepts them only in the guise of nurse-maids to her precious sons. Elizabeth Bruce Kircher presented with understanding the half-whining, wholly unconscious selfishness of this mother. The father, played by Fred McGrew, always seems about to disclose himself as an ally of Stella, but never quite dares.

The rest of the family are "types," used mostly for atmosphere and humor. They were admirably cast, and the comedy of Coralynn Pattison and Elsie Pitzer was particularly good. Patty Avery, if rather young to be the mother of Jerry, suggested that she was a cut above the rest of the tribe. The three older Hallam sons were well-portrayed by Clarence Mosher, Pat Pattison and George Dexter.

Del Monte Defeats Santa Barbara Poloists

In the high goal polo match last Sunday Del Monte defeated Santa Barbara, 11 to 6. George Pope, Jr., was high score man for Del Monte, piling up five goals. Earl Hopping scored three for the visitors.

Preceding the high goal polo matches today and Sunday, there will be a ladies' game between the Douglas School at Pebble Beach and a group numbering Mrs. Charles H. Jackson, Jr., of Santa Barbara, Mrs. Hugh Harrison, Mrs. Max Isoard and Miss Barbara Worth of Sacramento. Miss Jean Wilder, Miss Ruth Appleby, Miss May Jean Stirling and Miss Carol Morris will represent the Douglas School.

New Fountain Graces Carmel Mission Garden

Designed and executed by Harry Downie, curator, is the new fountain for the garden of Carmel Mission. The fountain has such a successful appearance of age and harmony with its surroundings that many visitors thoroughly familiar with the mission grounds have not realized at first glance that it has only just been installed. The large concrete basin in which the water of the fountain is caught has still too new a look, but time and suitable planting around its base will remedy that. It is in a sort of four-leaf clover design. The mission garden has been almost entirely relandscaped and after the winter clean-up work and much new planting, promises to be full of beauty and color in a few more months.

Dr. and Mrs. T. V. Moore of San Jose will occupy their cottage on Scenic over the coming week-end.

THE COUNCIL AND CONTROL

Carmel has ever a vigilant and critical eye upon its governing body, the council. As a general thing, The Pine Cone would deprecate the number and odiferousness of the dead cats which are hurled at the councilmen, in view of the fact that they serve without pay, presumably from a sense of civic responsibility. As a result they are the target for every crackpot who thinks he could do better, whether or not he commands a sufficient following to be elected himself. And so fewer and fewer of the best type of Carmelites will even consider a position on the council. Something of this came to light in the recent effort to fill a vacancy on the board. The councilmen received innumerable suggestions from the public; perhaps half a dozen names were offered again and again. But with one exception individuals whom Carmel might be proud to have on the council just laughed the suggestion down.

We believe that incessant and unreasonable criticism makes it harder and harder to get good men to serve. The guiding function of a vigilant electorate should embody cooperation and commendation as well as fault-finding.

We believe that a conviction that he will be wrong whatever he does is responsible for the lack of strong executive control on the part of Mayor Thoburn. He has no sense that the people, or any representative portion of the people, is behind him. We would say, "Jim, The Pine Cone is behind you, and would like to see you follow the dictates of your own conscience and common sense."

We believe that there is a growing and significant ground-swell of resentment of Councilman Catlin as "the boss of Carmel." We like Councilman Catlin, we admire and respect him as a picturesque and colorful individual, we believe that he is often right, but we do not believe that he, exclusively, should make and execute the policies of the council. We believe that he takes too much upon himself as the "spokesman" of the city council. He arranged the appointment of Robert Norton as chief of police, and is now determined to obtain his own appointment as commissioner of police and fire. Norton is no protege of Councilman Rowntree, but Rowntree would be just and fair as his immediate superior.

We call on the rest of the council to snap out of their lethargy and help Mr. Catlin to realize that he is only one of a board of five. His experience and wisdom are valuable in deliberation, but are not sufficiently all-embracing to excuse delegation to him of exclusive administrative powers.

THE PARKING PROBLEM

Every town has its parking problem. And Carmel in particular on week-ends has more than its share. Merchants and clerks and professional men drive their cars up town and park them along Ocean avenue and Dolores street for the day. When the week-end visitors come down to shop they find parking places scarce and are sometimes required to carry their purchases a block or two to get to their cars. This problem will continue to get worse as the summer months approach. It would be a nice courtesy to allow visitors the parking space on Ocean and Dolores on Saturdays and for the "regulars" to walk the extra block or two.

Even a newspaper man likes to hear somebody compliment what his paper prints but he knows, from sad experience, that people never read anything except the mistakes.

Here's Looking at You

By LOIS COLLINS PALMER

IN view of the rather lurid picture painted of Carmel's "slums" in a recent council meeting, there has been considerable rather loose talk circulating about the village, together with suggestions of "liquidating" the district, ranging through a police "clean-up" the advisability of taking the children from their parents, or just telling the families involved to leave town. There are certain objectionable features, not to say legal obstacles, in the paths of some of these helpful solutions to the problems of the poor. But enough interest has been aroused so that the residents of "Tortilla Flat" have had an unusual number of visitors this week. They are very nice about it, being used to answering impertinent questions and accepting helpful suggestions on how to live in a fashion more acceptable to the rest of the community.

It was stated at the council meeting that the slums of Chicago, Atlanta, and points east disclose no such picture of degradation as those of the Carmel slums. This was a little bit exaggerated. The heart of Tortilla Flat is a group of three houses, set well apart, surrounded with open meadows, accessible to sun and air. The houses are old and pretty dilapidated; they lack many modern conveniences. They would be hard for any housewife to keep reasonably clean; they are harder for housewives who have never had much to do with, nor much opportunity to raise their living standards. Generally speaking, people are not poor because they are dirty, but dirty because they are poor. I would refer the reader to Lauren Gilfillan's "I Went to Pit College" for an answer to the classic assertion "The poor can at least be clean."

Considerable to-do has been raised about the families' "failure to cooperate" in the matter of baths. We have been told they used the bathroom provided by the community to store potatoes and such. The bathtub was only just hooked up last Friday, so it seems that this conclusion may have been a little premature. The man at whose house the bathroom has been built was digging a trench and laying a drain-pipe; the plumber was just finishing installing the tub. Cold water only is piped into the tub; there is no gas in any of the houses, but the home where the tub is installed has a good big wood range. This is probably what some observers mistook for the "nice big gas stove."

We foresee communistic dangers here. It will be a problem of Communism, or something, to decide who is to gather the wood for whose bath-water, and just to what extent the stove can be considered the common property of the whole district, as a necessary adjunct to the community bathtub. Also who is to clean the tub afterward. Perhaps this will be the job of the policeman who may be assigned to see that the Tortilla Flatters take their baths with suitable regularity.

And this suggests another thought. We notice other Carmelites roaming the downtown streets who look as if an occasional bath wouldn't hurt them. Perhaps if we leave their names with Bob Norton he might be able to do something about that, too. And how about a committee to visit some of the bachelors' quarters, to see how often they change their sheets, and whether they have dogs sleeping on their beds? This might develop into a real community clean-up.

Te Tortilla Flat children appeared both happy and reasonably healthy Friday afternoon. The parents seem fond of them, and quite unconscious that their poverty is a crime, "contributing to the delinquency of minors." It might be a trifle complicated to evacuate the district, because the families own their own homes. They probably would not be any better off in a road-side camp somewhere, or in the old tramp "jungles" where hundreds of California families are today living in conditions which truly have no parallel in the slums of the great cities. It might solve the problem for Carmel, but not for society. But on the whole these three families do not appear to constitute a very serious "problem," nor one beyond the power of the school nurse to cope with.

THE HOLDING COMPANIES

The regular editorial budget of second-class mail is being augmented at present by frenetic publicity against President Roosevelt's drive on the public utility holding companies. As is usual with propaganda campaigns of this type, this one plays the old red-herring trick of diverting the reader's attention from the real issue. This sort of stuff is most effective with people who half-think, and accept as gospel truth the fulminations of the Hearst press.

From reading this propaganda only, one would gather the impression that Mr. Roosevelt proposed to take over and operate immediately all the power plants of the country, and that Communism was just around the corner The "holding company" issue is very much played down, just thrown in as a sort of after thought.

The holding company is one of the more nefarious ramifications of high finance, brought to its glory in the hey-days before 1929, on which a good many innocent investors severely burnt their fingers. The fathers of our country did not foresee such a contingency and neglected to put a protective clause into the Constitution. It's too bad they didn't; then the mass of the people might be able to invoke the "unconstitutional" excuse for a change. Because there is always the danger that whatever legislation against the holding companies the president may succeed in promoting, the supreme court will sooner or later declare unconstitutional. It is a violation of individual freedom and initiative; of the right of the rugged individualists to erect an elaborate and fictitious financial structure designed to fleece the small investor. It is a fine false front behind which power "maggots" speculate in their own stocks and drain the lifeblood of what otherwise might be legitimate business enterprises. The holding company has no legitimate, constructive excuse for existing, and is an effective device for concealing chicanery.

HOPE FOR THE AGED

In a period of considerable stress, the California legislation wasted several days in what might be considered the good clean sport, or maybe not so clean sport, of deciding in just what form to "endorse" the Townsend plan. Mr. Merriam made a rather fumbling gesture toward the voters at both extremes of the economic scale in commending the plan "in principle" but without the $200 a month clause, which is, after all, the only distinguishing feature of the Townsend plan as such.

It is a question whether the whole thing was "cheap politics," as claimed in many quarters, or a more subtle attempt to sabotage all forms of social legislation; the same game that the reactionaries played in holding out for the prevailing wage clause in the president's relief bill. Agitation for the Townsend plan is doing the nation a certain disservice. Its obvious impracticability and economic unsoundness will convince many people who do not think too clearly anyway, that all forms of social insurance are equally preposterous.

A more hopeful view may be taken, however. The desperate and poverty-stricken aged, and not the aged alone, have been so effectivly organized and given a voice under Dr. Townsend's visionary leadership that they may give most effective impetus to the still nebulous federal program leading to greater social security.

There are very few people in the world who think that the world has overpaid them.

Youngsters Form Baseball Teams

Patterned in many respects after the famous Abalone league is the Sunset school intramural baseball league which is now holding the center of interest in school sports. The teams are made up of boys interested, from grades 3 to 8. Brothers, and in some cases, two sets of brothers, play on the same team, and fathers are permitted to participate to the extent of outside practice, limbering up their arms to help young sons get in shape. The interest of adult baseball enthusiasts has enabled the school to procure excellent umpires. Mothers and fathers are always welcome.

Parents Entertained By Girl Scout Troop

The Girl Scout troop of high school girls delightfully entertained their parents at dinner Saturday evening at the Scout House, and incidentally charged them 25 cents for the privilege, as the purpose of the occasion was not hospitality alone, but to raise funds for the piano which the girls are buying for the Monterey Scout House. The girls planned and served supper and arranged the program which followed, including a puppet show, which three troop members, Beatrice and Jacqueline Raiter and Patricia Hall, put on with the assistance of Betty Schauffler. Mrs. A. C. Heidrick showed some of her own motion picture films. A chamber music group consisting of Jean Crouch, cello; Winifred Stilwell, violin; Nancy Bragg, viola, and David Hagemeyer, violin, played several selections. Guests and hostesses participated in group singing.

The girls who arranged and carried out the party are: June Heidrick, Beatrice and Jacqueline Raiter, Patricia Hall, Alison Stilwell, Jane Haskell, Barbara Haasis, Jane Vincent, Patricia Millington, Betty Holman, Katherine Beaton, Evelyn De Bolt and Nancy Menoher.

St. Patrick's Day Bridge Success

A St. Patrick's Day bridge tea successfully inaugurated the spring season for the women of Monterey Peninsula Country Club, the afternoon of March 14. Tables for about 100 players were set in the great lounge, which was massed with flowers. Tallies and table appointments were in the color and motif of the Irish saint's birthday. After the game Mrs. Norman Reynolds and Mrs. Frederick Burt presided at the tea table, which was centered with greenery and lighted with tall green tapers. A musical program to which Mrs. Robert Bernard of New York City and Mrs. Dean Lacey of Salinas contributed vocal solos, accompanied by Mrs. Walter Anderson, concluded the afternoon.

Score prizes went to Mrs. James B. Finley, Mrs. Harry Brownell, Mrs. S. V. Christierson, Mrs. A. Dean Lacey and Mrs. William Thiele.

Mrs. John E. Abernethy is chairman of the general entertainment committee at the club, and arranged this initial party with the assistance of Mrs. Carl Burrows and Mrs. Hugh Dormody. A series of attractive events is planned and will be carried out with the assistance of the following committee members: Mesdames William T. Lee, Clayton L. Shaff, Edward David, Andrew C. Hughes, Jack Beaumont, Henry Tiedemann, Thomas Work, Herbert Landers, Frederick Burt, O. L. Davis, Ray Brownell, Eric Van Zandt, David Scripture, Louis Vidoroni, Alger Fast, Frank Porter, Arthur Metz, Ralph Hughes, Michael Tynan, John Thompson, C. D. Rand, William Raiguel, Harold McLean, J. L. Cockburn, Jack Goodeno, Henry Rauers, J. D. Bradfield, Dan Madeira, Fred Naylor, Bob Barbour, Jack Schroeder and Miss Anita Doud.

State Organization of Pathologists Planned

Conviction of Albert Di Gioia, pathologist of Peninsula Community Hospital, that standards of California pathologists should be raised and protected, is about to bear fruit in the formation of a state organization of followers of this highly technical profession. Through correspondence with others engaged in this work, he has raised interest to such a pitch that an organization meeting will be held in San Francisco, probably within the next month. The American Society of Pathologists is interested in the California project, and has given much help and encouragement, as have Dr. Zera Bolin of San Francisco and Dr. Alvin Foord of Pasadena, brother-pathologists of Mr. Di Gioia.

Chevrolet Price Is Reduced Here

A substantial reduction in the delivered price of the Chevrolet Master De Luxe, effective March 15, was announced today by E. C. Poklen of Poklen Chevrolet Company, local Chevrolet dealer.

"The local reception of the new Chevrolet Master model has been the greatest since the boom years," said Mr. Poklen. "We have so many orders booked for this car that the Oakland plant of Chevrolet is having a hard time keeping up with our demand. The same situation holds true for other Chevrolet dealers on the Pacific coast. We interpret this as definite indication that the new Master De Luxe is exactly what the motoring public wants and also that economic conditions are improving rapidly.

"The feature that is attracting most attention in the Master De Luxe is the turret-top body by Fisher, a single, seamless sheet of steel that completely surrounds the occupants of the car. Because of this turret-top the Master De Luxe has an appearance of stream-lined sleekness which is impossible to obtain with ordinary body construction. Knee Action is optional on the new Master but more than 95 per cent of the orders we have received to date request Knee Action which Chevrolet introduced last year and which provides the famous Chevrolet gliding ride.

Bechdolt Takes Exception To Unfounded Statement

Frederick Bechdolt, county SERA director, reacted sharply and at once at an editorial published in the Monterey Peninsula Herald this week. While in no position to comment on the criticism of the nation's work relief program embodied in the editorial, Bechdolt declared statements made as to the work-attitudes of men engaged on SERA projects in this county were made without investigation and were unfounded.

"The only trouble we have had with men doing unsatisfactory work," said Bechdolt, "has been in certain instances where the sponsors of projects have not lived up to their agreement to provide proper supervision, or where supervision has been provided on a "political" basis. Statements that men are getting into the habit of "soldiering" on SERA jobs is a rank injustice to many earnest, hard-working men and women in Monterey county."

Lively Baseball Games Promised

Sunset school is participating in the Peninsula grammar school baseball league with teams entered in both the A and B sections. The B league afford the younger boys a chance to play in inter-school competition; the A team constitutes the first string and is composed of the best baseball material the school has to offer.

While Sunset does not have this year the splendid baseball material it has had in years past, it promises to furnishd some lively competition before the season is over. The first two games were dropped to the strong Bay View nines. Competing against Monterey Friday, Sunset lost the B game but came from behind in a thrilling finish to take the A team contest by the close score of 7-6.

Sunset A team: Bob Frolli, D. Villapando, M. Miyamoto, H. Butts, H. Levinson, B. Frolli, F. Hayford, V. Candia, B. Short, J. McEldowney.

Monterey A team: John Crivello, John Filippo, Joe Salmeri, Bruno Salvatore, Eddie Genorese, Jim Crivello, Al Bruno, Vincent Scanddeto, Martin Nodilo, Frank Catanio.

Umpire for the A game was Frank Townsend; for B game, Donald Hale.

BEAUTIFUL spring weather seems to have set the world a-traveling, and though this is usually the "quiet season" in Carmel, between Washington's Birthday and Easter, last week-end brought an unusual number of visitors. It was notable that many of these were out-of-the-state people rather than bay city residents and other California neighbors. The spring migration is on, from the east and up and down the coast.

The week-end guest list at La Ribera emphasized the fact that more than the usual number of travelers from distant points are visiting the peninsula. There were Mrs. L. J. Reese of Dedham, Mass., traveling with Mrs. Harriet Abbe of Litchfield, that historic Connecticut village; Mrs. M. G. Chase and her daughter, Jane, of New York City; Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Nicholson and their daughter from Vancouver, B. C., and another widely-known Canadian, W. H. Emens of Toronto. From Boise, Idaho, came Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Burrough and Mrs. Frank G. Davidson. California visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Clark of Piedmont, here to arrange for a cottage for Easter week; Mr. and Mrs. John Phelps Deal of Mill Valley, on their wedding trip; Mrs. H. F. Flick and her daughter, Mrs. F. N. Levins, of the Parkway hotel in Los Angeles; Mrs. V. S. Welch and Mrs. Nan Proctor of Berkeley.

Among the easterners at Pine Inn are Miss Evelyn Ward and Miss Julia Koch of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Phillips of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Switzer of Aurora, Ill., George Zeisler of La Crosse, Wis., Mrs. C. S. Somerville of Rivertown, N. Y., Mrs. William B. Lawrence and Miss Ruth Lawrence of Medford, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Kasaler of Danver.

Recent arrivals at Pine Inn from the bay cities include Miss Juanita Rockwell, who is staying a week or more; Dr. and Mrs. Sanford V. Larkey of Piedmont, who have just returned from the east where Dr. Larkey has been doing research at Johns Hopkins on a Huntington Library fellowship; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mathews of San Francisco, who have been regular visitors here for nearly 30 years now; Mrs. Federick Montmorency, mother of Stuart Montmorency, who will remain for about a month; and Miss Jean Fowler, San Francisco socialite.

Quite a number of week-end arrivals at Highlands Inn stayed on for the week or longer, as a result of the fine sunny weather and the beauty of the peninsula in its dress of spring flowers. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Thomas and their grandson, Cloyle Harris, of Pasadena; Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Payne of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Morris of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. Haldane Fisher of San Francisco, who are guests of the Thomas Fishers, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Janzen of Challenge; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kenyon, who were married here Saturday and are remaining for the honeymoon; Clarence Briggs, who represents the state teachers' organization at Sacramento and Ray Everhard, both of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Jack G. Booth, another pair of honeymooners, who were married in Pomona last Friday; Mrs. Howard Truslow and her son Carlton, of the Sir Francis Drake hotel in San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Bauer, who were also here on their honeymoon just a year ago; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Marcucci, married in San Francisco last Saturday; Admiral G. S. Tiedeman and his son, F. W. L. Tiedeman, who are showing California to their friends, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Andrau of the Hague; and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Buttner of Oakland.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin C. Dorsett at Cheery Corner this week were Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Cheley and their son, Jack, of Denver. Mr. Cheley is the director of the Colorado summer boys' camp with which Mr. Dorsett was associated for eight years, and was en route to Yosemite, where he will be one of the speakers at the assemblage of National Camp Directors, March 21 to 24.

Local Telephone Exchange to Hold Open House for Public Next Week

CARMELITES say and hear a million words a day over their telephones.

Robert P. Sexton, manager of the telephone company, made this estimate of local telephone "talkage" today, and supplemented his figures by another estimate that 100 words a minute are spoken in the average telephone conversation.

Next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 1 to 8:30 p. m., visitors to "open house" in the telephone building, at Dolores and Seventh streets, will see how operators and equipment speed 4600 calls a day from Carmel telephones.

The public reception will be given by local employees of the telephone company, who will be hosts and hostesses to an anticipated "record crowd of visitors."

Sexton said the Carmel telephone office regularly experiences its busiest hour between 10 and 11 o'clock in the morning, when more than one-tenth of the day's telephone calls are made. In those 60 minutes about 105,000 words are spoken.

The second highest level in voice traffic is reached from 5 to 6 p. m., when 73,000 words presumably have to do with wives asking husbands to "bring something" from the store, or husbands saying they "will be a little late." The lowest ebb in "talkage" comes between 11 p. m. and midnight; only 3000 words are spoken in that hour.

In addition to the special exhibits at the open house, there will be telephone displays in downtown store windows. The Carmel Hardware Store will show the eight types of huge vacuum tubes used to hurl telephone voices from California to Hawaii and the Far East. The Carmel Garage will display a big map which illustrates with flashing lights the routes taken by telephone calls to Hawaii, Japan and the Philippines.

Grove Students Visit University

A group of senior English class members from the Pacific Grove High School journeyed to the University of California Saturday, as many of them are looking for a likely college to "inhabit" for the four years after high school. Their modes of transportation were four cars driven by Kimble Smith, Raymond Kopp, Charles Bell and George Rogers. Reaching the university, the group toured the campus, taking in all places of interest.

On the campus the group met several students who are from Pacific Grove: Walter Gottlund, Bob Conover, Lois Reed and Winifred France. Those who made the journey were Miss Evelyn Gardner, Mrs. A. B. Ingham, Mrs. Kopp, Mr. Kimble Smith, and Misses Georgann Good, Anita Abby, Barbara McGill, Louise Cowen, Elizabeth de Lorimier, Ruth Fogg, Barbara Kenyon, Barbara Ingham, Ruth McIlroy, Marjorie Banta, and Hatsume Murakami.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES CHANGE DATE OF NEXT MEETING

Next monthly meeting of Sunset school trustees will be held on Thursday evening, April 11, rather than Tuesday, the 9th, the regular meeting time, it was announced this week. The change was made because of a conflict in date with the Public School Week program.

Trends in County Government and Taxes Subject of Samuel May Talk

"TRENDS in county government and taxes," was the lesser part of the talk on general governmental evolution by Professor Samuel C. May of the University of California at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Monterey Peninsula League of Women Voters. His summation of the tendency, which he believes inevitable, toward greater centralization, was a valuable exposition of the tenets of the more enlightened political economists. Prof. May is professor of political science, director of U. C.'s bureau of public administration, and one of the finest speakers the university affords.

Government as envisioned by the country's founders was a necessary evil, negative rather than positive, Prof. May pointed out. The colonists had come to the new world because of unfortunate experiences with government in Europe. They deified individual freedom and proposed to have as little central control as possible. The Constitution gave no power to the federal government not absolutely necessary in a comparatively simple age. The Constitution was magnificently conceived to this end, but was essentially designed to allow 13 quarreling colonies to band together for mutual protection rather than to govern a continent under the unforeseen complexities of a power age. The answer to all our present-day problems, Prof. May said, cannot be found in the Constitution, and the system of checks and balances which it provides, and which meant safety to isolated units of population a hundred years ago, come close to imposing a paralysis on the administrative branch in times of emergency when quick, coordinated action is needed.

Government Assistance

"Man can no longer control his environment as he could 50 years ago," the speaker pointed out. 'He must turn more and more to government for assistance and protection. The federal government has not sought centralized power, but necessity has compelled it to assume extraordinary functions." He showed that many of the factors influencing modern life are no respecters of state boundaries; only a central government can hope to cope with complex and far-reaching problems such as public health, crime control, relief for a migratory, jobless population, and many others.

"Decline of legislatures is world wide," commented Prof. May, of the extraordinary powers which have currently been placed in the hands of executives. It is not possible for deliberative assemblies to solve complex social and economic problems. Of necessity, they are turned over to experts in the administrative field. Rather than planning, the function of the legislature is to ratify the plans of technicians. It is in the province of legislatures to give extreme powers in times of stress. So long as they are also privileged to revoke such powers, we continue to have democratic government."

No Central Control

National and state governments have forged ahead of the county unit in realistic adaptation to modern conditions, the speaker said. County government is not integrated, has divided responsibility and no central control. The alternative, receiving some recognition, is a chairman of the board of supervisors with executive powers, or a "county manager," responsible to the supervisors who retain the power to raise and spend money and final decision in controversial matters, but "let an expert do the work." The speaker indicated that it is partly as a result of the outmoded system of county government that a strong trend is under way toward centralization of governmental functions in the hands of the state, as already seen in education, welfare work and highway maintenance. "The counties must modernize or find all their powers absorbed by the state," he said. Without endorsing or condemning the plan now pending in California for the state to take over the maintenance of all county roads, Prof. May said that if they wish to prevent this, county supervisors must relinquish the supervisorial district system of road upkeep; centralize and integrate county highway systems.

Reader's Reaction

Editor The Pine Cone:

The notice in your paper that Miss Berry is leaving the library, has filled my family with great dismay. For the past three years she has made the library a very vital part of our lives.

It seems strange to me that Carmel should let a librarian of such outstanding ability slip away from them.

My son has been studying hard these past few years. When he wanted information he would go to Miss Berry, state what he was searching for and she never failed to put her hand at once on the technical book he needed. For the remainder of my family, old and young, she has supplied our needs to our complete joy and satisfaction.

Can't she be persuaded to return?

Again, I repeat, I can not understand how Carmel can let a person of such outstanding ability, go.

Sunset Grounds Being Improved

Grounds of Sunset school are beginning to show the results of the Saturday-morning volunteer labors of the garden committee, headed by Devoe Briggs. The boys have been cleaning up the shrubbery beds, finding embedded in the soil enough small, symmetrical stones to make ornamental borders for the beds. They have recently bought a quantity of new shrubs, with money raised by various benefit enterprises, and the planting of these will carry along, though still without completing, the base-planting about the school.

Mrs. Jane Todd has been of inestimable assistance to the committee. She comes to the school frequently, helps the committee with suggestions as to material, best locations for shrubs of differing habits, and special care for temperamental garden-dwellers. It is a pleasure to her to do so, because of the unusual interest the youngsters take in the work.

Joseph A. Burge helped the good work along with a donation of three loads of top-soil.

The personnel of the committee changes from time to time, but Bill Coffin and Roger MacNeill have been particularly faithful in their help to Chairman Briggs.
